

Forestry

VOLUME 85 NUMBER 1 2012

- The effects of site preparation practices on carbon dioxide, methane and nitrous oxide fluxes from a peaty gley soil
W. Mojeremane, R. M. Rees and M. Mencuccini 1
- A Bayesian approach for modelling non-linear longitudinal/hierarchical data with random effects in forestry
R. Li, B. Stewart and A. Weiskittel 17
- Comparative testing of single-tree detection algorithms under different types of forest
J. Vauhkonen, L. Ene, S. Gupta, J. Heinzel, J. Holmgren, J. Pitkänen, S. Solberg, Y. Wang, H. Weinacker, K. M. Hauglin, V. Lien, P. Packalén, T. Gobakken, B. Koch, E. Næsset, T. Tokola and M. Maltamo 27
- Decomposing small-scale structural complexity in even- and uneven-sized Norway spruce-dominated forests in southern Finland
E. K. Zenner, J. E. Peck, E. Lähde and O. Laiho 41
- Estimating nutrient budgets for prescribed thinning in a regrowth eucalyptus forest in south-west Australia
S. Qiu, R. W. Bell, R. J. Hobbs and A. J. McComb 51
- Evaluating the profitability of selection cuts in irregular boreal forests: an approach based on Monte Carlo simulations
T. Y. Moore, J.-C. Ruel, M.-A. Lapointe and J.-M. Lussier 63
- Examining growth dynamics of Pinus radiata plantations at old ages in New Zealand
R. C. Woollons and B. R. Manley 79
- Constitutive defenses and damage in Sitka spruce progeny obtained from crosses between white pine weevil resistant and susceptible parents
X. Moreira, R. I. Alfaro and J. N. King 87
- Carbon density in managed coast redwood stands: implications for forest carbon estimation
D. A. Jones and K. L. O'hara 99
- The effects of whole-tree harvesting on three sites in upland Britain on the growth of Sitka spruce over ten years
W. L. Mason, H. M. McKay, A. Weatherall, T. Connolly and A. J. Harrison 111
- Comparing field- and model-based standing dead tree carbon stock estimates across forests of the US
C. W. Woodall, G. M. Domke, D. W. MacFarlane and C. M. Oswald 125
- Can overstorey retention be used to control bramble (Rubus fruticosus L. agg.) during regeneration of forests?
R. Harmer, A. Kiewitt and G. Morgan 135
- Comparing a top-down and bottom-up approach in the identification of criteria and indicators for sustainable community forest management in Nepal
C. Khadka and H. Vacik 145
- Editor's Note 159

