March 2013
Volume 111, Number 2

RESEARCH ARTICLES

human dimensions

87 Family Forest Owners and Climate Change: Understanding, Attitudes, and Educational Needs

economics

94 Economic and Environmental Competitiveness of US-Made Forest Products: Implications for Offshore Outsourcing
J. Gan

education & communication

101 Diversity and Dynamism of Fire Science User Needs
E.J. Davis, C. Moseley, C. Olsen, J. Abrams, and J. Creighton

J.D. VanBrable, R.H. Germain, J.F. Munsell, and S.V. Siebman

policy

115 Escaping the National Forest Planning Quagmire: Using Public Participation GIS to Assess Acceptable National Forest Use
G.G. Brown and S. Donovan

measurement

126 Estimating Forestland Area Change from Inventory Data
P.C. Van Deuren, F.A. Roesch, and T.B. Wigley

brief communication

132 Web Application to Access and Visualize US Forest Inventory and Analysis Program Down Woody Materials Data
D.C. Chojnacky, C.E. Blinn, and S.P. Prisley
Ecological Impacts of Energy-Wood Harvests: Lessons from Whole-Tree Harvesting and Natural Disturbance

DEPARTMENTS

Research in Review
Letters
SAF Curricula and Committee Actions
Journal of Forestry Quiz

SAF Mission
The Society of American Foresters (SAF) is the national scientific and educational organization representing the forestry profession in the United States. Founded in 1900 by Gifford Pinchot, it is the largest professional society for foresters in the world. The mission of the Society of American Foresters is to advance the science, education, technology, and practice of forestry; to enhance the competency of its members; to establish professional excellence; and to use the knowledge, skills, and conservation ethos of the profession to ensure the continued health and use of forest ecosystems and the present and future availability of forest resources to benefit society. SAF is a non-profit organization meeting the requirements of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. SAF members include professional foresters in public and private settings, researchers, educators, and students.

SAF Core Values
1. Forests are a fundamental source of global health and human welfare.
2. Forests must be sustained through simultaneously meeting environmental, economic, and community aspirations and needs.
3. Forests are dedicated to sound forest management and conservation.
4. Forests serve landowners and society by providing sound knowledge and professional management skills.

JoF journal of FORESTRY

Editorial Policy
The Journal of Forestry welcomes scientific and editorial manuscripts that advance the profession of forestry by presenting significant developments and ideas of general interest to natural resource and forestry professionals. Articles published in the Journal present, in a readable style, new and state-of-the-art knowledge, research, practice, ideas, and policies. Mini-reviews on topics of special interest are also published at the discretion of the editorial board. Manuscripts must not have been published previously and must not be under consideration for publication elsewhere. Acceptance for publication is based on both editorial criteria and peer review. Manuscripts are evaluated for methodology, technical accuracy, breadth of appeal, clarity, contribution, and merit. The Journal reserves the right to publish counterpoints or supplemental articles to promote discussion.

Submission Guidelines
Letters to the Editor—Letters should directly address ideas or facts presented in the Journal. Priority is given to letters no longer than 250 words that refer to material published within the past six months. Letters may be faxed to (301) 897-3690, attention Editor, e-mailed to journal@safrn.org, or mailed to Editor, Journal of Forestry, 5400 Gravure Lane, Bethesda, MD 20814-2190.

Exploring the Roots—These short introductions revisit seminal articles previously published by SAF and discuss topics of historical import to the field of forestry, as well as explore the historical basis for issues currently affecting forestry. Maximum length is 1,000 words. Proposals for Exploring the Roots columns may be e-mailed to journal@safrn.org, faxed to (301) 897-3690, attention Editor, or mailed to Editor, Journal of Forestry, 5400 Gravure Lane, Bethesda, MD 20814-2190.

Perspectives—These short opinion pieces are not formally reviewed but are evaluated for content and style by the editors and/or editorial board. Maximum length is 1,000 words. The contributor of a “Perspective” must be a member of the Society of American Foresters. Submit the manuscript, complete contact information, and a head-and-shoulders photograph online at www.rapidreview.com/SAF/author.html.

Full Length Articles—Maximum length is 4,500 words, plus a 150-word abstract. Footnotes should be incorporated into the text wherever possible or be presented as endnotes. Full guidelines can be found online at www.jofonline.org. Submit your manuscript online at www.rapidreview.com/SAF/author.html. Because the review process is double-blind, please ensure that authors are not identified anywhere in the manuscript (including running heads and feet).

Review Articles—Maximum length is 6,000 words, plus a 150-word abstract. Footnotes should be incorporated into the text wherever possible or be presented as endnotes. There is no limit to the number of literature citations in a review article. Full guidelines can be found online at www.jofonline.org. Submit your manuscript online at www.rapidreview.com/SAF/author.html. Because the review process is double-blind, please ensure that authors are not identified anywhere in the manuscript (including running heads and feet).